

1 The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) protects the privacy of student records by restricting the release of certain information contained in the student's education records. Without written authorization, the Office of Community Standards at the University of New Hampshire will not release education records to a third party.

Authorizations must either be received in person (with appropriate identification presented), sent from a UNH email, notarized or verified for authenticity by another method.

PLEASE NOTE:

Student disciplinary history does not contain academic, financial, or health records.

Some information will be redacted from records to comply with relevant laws and general protections of privacy.

Information will only be released in the manner described and to the recipient listed below - not to the student.
