

Deciding on a Career?

Areas you are most naturally drawn to - making school and work more motivating and enjoyable: artistic, conventional, enterprising, investigative, realistic, social...

Interest

What you are good at and have the ability to do well. Knowing your skills allows you to determine which ones you want to acquire or further develop, the specific ways to accomplish those goals, and how your skills match with potential careers.

Values

What motivates us & moves us toward certain decisions, behaviors and goals. Values greatly influence the career decision making process, job satisfaction and, ultimately, life satisfaction.

Skills

Personality Preferences & Interpersonal Skills

Has to do with your individual, innate nature and how you tend to be consistent over time. Understanding personality and interpersonal needs allows you to see correlations between the way you make decisions and your work style.
