

Syllabus Guidance Spring 2025 for Durham and Manchester

Notes For use of this Document:

At a minimum, the purpose of the syllabus is to set expectations, and to be a record of the expectations between you and your students. The clearer and more detailed your syllabus, the easier it will be to create the learning environment that you want in your classroom. NECHE and other external accreditors expect a syllabus to be an effective tool of transparency for students about what they are expected to learn, how the class will help them learn (what activities and pedagogies), what resources are available to help them learn, how that learning will be assessed, how the course fits into their curriculum, and any policies important to the class and learning environment. Especially for first- and second-year students, an effective syllabus can help them learn to manage their workload and build good study habits. There is also a lot of research about how to use a syllabus as a learning tool. A sampling of this literature can be found at the Teaching & Learning Hub, and individual consultations on how to design the best syllabus for your learning goals can be scheduled with one of our pedagogy experts through teaching.excellence@unh.edu.

Last year, the Faculty Senate passed a motion on minimum syllabus requirements. The Syllabus Outline from the motion is provided on the next page, with convenient links that you may want to use. We will continue to work through the Fall, and with your help, to develop evergreen online resources for both instructors and students.

The additional information in this document is intended to provide useful information to help guide your syllabus design, and helpful template language you can choose to use. It is designed to be helpful in creating transparency, but not to be prescriptive. It attempts to explain why certain policies are in place, and then provides example verbiage for a syllabus that you are free to use or modify.

Section 3 of this guide is focused on student supports, with a single link at the top for general resources. If you are interested in a refresher on student supports, this section contains valuable information for you as an instructor. Many instructors like to include some student supports sections on their syllabi to reinforce the availability to students. It is optional content for your syllabus.

Please note that this guide is as inclusive as possible across all course offerings at Durham and Manchester – so not all sections will apply to your course. You know your students and your course best. Pick and choose what sections make sense in your learning environment.

The guidance provided here is the culmination of input from multiple faculty committees, multiple senate committees, student support offices, Department of Women and Gender Studies, associate deans, prior feedback, and the provost's office. Feedback is welcome, especially suggestions to improve this content. Please contact Kate Ziemer (katherine.ziemer@unh.edu).

2. Instructional Guidance and Optional Template Syllabus Language for Academic Policies

2.1 Attendance

Specific attendance requirements, including how individual faculty assess absences and designate excused absences, are set by the course instructor and based on the needs of the course. Individual course attendance policies should be described in the course syllabus. UNH's attendance policy, including reasons for excused absences, can be found in the catalog. As noted in the policy, there are some situations where instructors must excuse absences and not subject students to academic penalty. Instructors do not need to refer students to get a Dean of Student's letter to excuse these absences, though instructors may request proof directly from the student regarding their participation in sporting events, jury duty, or military service.

From policy: "Reasons that faculty must excuse student absences are: (a) participation in official intercollegiate events, (b) participation in official adaptive sports events facilitated by Northeast Passage, (c) jury duty, (d) required military service, and (e) important religious holidays and/or observances." See full policy for more details.

A best practice is to be clear with students that they are expected to communicate with you ahead of time about such excused absences so that you and the student can determine the base way to make up for the missed learning opportunity. The UNH Master Calendar contains major religious holidays, and directions for navigation on that calendar to find those holidays can be found here.

Sample Syllabus Language: Attendance

Class attendance is important for your learning. You are responsible for all course assignments and meeting all deadlines unless exceptions are agreed upon with the instructor ahead of time. Attendance in this course is (please state your policy). The following are not considered excused absences: (if you have an excused absence policy). If you need to miss class for a planned activity, let the instructor know ahead of time. See the Attendance and Class Requirements policy in the undergraduate catalog.

In the event that a student needs accommodation for a religious or cultural holiday/observance, that student is encouraged to make that request as early in the semester as possible.

2.2.1 Extended Absences for Non-Academic Reasons

If students are dealing with an unexpected, extenuating circumstance that will keep them out of class or affect their performance for more than a day or two, they can reach out to the Dean of Students (dean.students@unh.edu) or Lisa Enright (lisa.enright@unh.edu), Assistant Dean of Student Success, for students at CPS Manchester. Please do not ask students for medical documentation yourself or ask the student follow up questions that would violate the confidentiality of this process. Once you receive a letter from the Dean of Students (example letters here), it is within your authority to determine what temporary academic supports are appropriate for your course and the student's situation (see the Attendance and Class Requirements policy). You may also receive letters from the Civil Rights & Equity Office and should treat these letters in the same manner that you do letters from the Dean of Students.

The Civil Rights and Equity Office (CREO) will provide requests for supportive measures related to Title IX. These requests are regulated by Federal Regulation and UNH policy. The Title IX Coordinator or designee will make these requests for general academic flexibility and/or a specific request. If these requests cannot be accommodated, the Title IX Coordinator will need a rationale on why and make a determination; If you have questions related to these requests, please contact CREO directly.

To be transparent with students, please include in your syllabus an outline of how you will provide temporary academic supports for your classes. Because of different course content, expected deliverables, and teaching pedagogies, there is no standard prescription for what temporary academic supports are best able to support students who cannot attend class for legitimate reasons. As such, students may experience different types of temporary academic supports for different classes, and this can be confusing for them. By explaining to your students up front how you plan to support their academic progress during an excused absence such as an isolation period, you will help set reasonable expectations for your course.

Letters are issued when the student is managing circumstances that will affect their academics for more than a day or two. When students miss a single day of class or are asking for flexibility with a single assignment/exam, you should use your discretion to determine what is appropriate. You can find more information on the Dean of Students website.

Sample Syllabus Language: Temporary Academic Supports for Extended Absences with Letter – Durham

If you are dealing with an unexpected, extenuating circumstance that will keep you out of class or affect your performance for more than a day or two, reach out to the Dean of Students (dean.students@unh.edu) to request a letter be sent to all your faculty.

If you are required to miss significant class time, you will be provided temporary academic supports so that you can continue to make satisfactory progress in this course. Please contact your course instructor to discuss the specific types of supports that will be implemented during your absence. Possible options you may be provided in this class include: [then pick one or more of the following for your syllabus or come up with your own description]

- Class notes from a peer
- One-on-one meetings with instructor or TA to catch-up on missed content
- Virtual office hours
- Access to recorded lectures (asynchronous)
- Remote access for class (synchronous)*
- Lecture slides
- Handouts or other materials that are distributed

* Please recognize that not all students will be well enough to attend classes remotely

2.2 Accommodations for Disability

Under the ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act), any qualified student with a disability has the right to request accommodations to ensure access to their experiences at UNH. SAS supports students across all UNH campuses through the three-step accommodation process (register with SAS, submit documentation, meet with SAS). Once accommodations are approved, students can activate their accommodations through a “semester request” and SAS sends faculty the student’s approved accommodations through an accommodation letter via Accommodate. Faculty have an obligation to respond once they receive official SAS notice of accommodations but are under no obligation to provide retroactive accommodations. SAS (sas.office@unh.edu) can also help faculty determine how to effectively implement accommodations, and the Teaching & Learning Hub, or one of our pedagogy experts through teaching.excellence@unh.edu can help with additional pedagogical support.

Sample Syllabus Statement: Student Accessibility Services – Durham

According to the Americans with Disabilities Act (as amended, 2008), each student with a disability has the right to request services from UNH to accommodate their disability. If you are a student with a documented disability or believe you may have a disability that requires accommodations, please contact Student Accessibility Services (SAS); 227 Smith Hall, or sas.office@unh.edu.

Accommodation letters are created by SAS with the student. Please follow-up with your instructor as soon as possible to ensure timely implementation of the identified accommodations in the letter. Faculty have an obligation to respond once they receive official notice of accommodations from SAS, but are under no obligation to provide retroactive accommodations.

For more information, contact SAS: 227 Smith Hall, www.unh.edu/sas, 603.862.2607, 711 (Relay NH) or sas.office@unh.edu

2.3 Confidentiality and Mandatory Reporting

The University of New Hampshire and its faculty are committed to assuring a safe and productive educational environment for all students and for the university as a whole. To this end, the university requires faculty members to report to the university's Title IX Coordinator (Bo Zaryckyj, Bo.Zaryckyj@unh.edu, 603-862-2930/1527 TTY) any incidents of sexual violence and harassment shared by students. All employees are subject to this mandatory reporting. If a student wishes to speak to a confidential support service provider who does not have this reporting responsibility because their discussions with clients are subject to legal privilege, you can find a list of resources here privileged confidential service providers/resources. Including a statement of confidentiality and mandatory reporting along with links of supports for students is important for helping our community stay in compliance with Title IX, as well as living up to our commitment of building a safe community for everyone.

Anonymous reports may be submitted.

2.3.1 Sensitive Course Content (if applicable)

If your course engages with content including sexual violence, domestic/dating violence, stalking, other identity-based violence/discrimination, or general violence (harm to self or others) consider including language in your syllabus informing students that these topics will be covered in the course. You may also notify students (either via the syllabus or in class) in advance of specific materials that include the content (e.g., readings, films, etc.). See below for example syllabus language. Courses that cover these topics may also give rise to more disclosures from students about their own experiences with sexual harassment or interpersonal violence. Please consider emphasizing your role as a mandatory reporter in class.

Sample Syllabus Statement: Sensitive Course Content

The content and discussion in this course will engage with racism, sexism (including sexual violence), and homophobia (among other difficult topics) throughout the semester. Much of it will be emotionally and intellectually challenging to engage with. I will do my best to flag especially graphic or intense content and to make this classroom a space where we can engage bravely and thoughtfully with difficult content every week.

2.4 Course Workload and Credit Hour

Link to UNH Federal Credit Hour Policy: <https://catalog.unh.edu/undergraduate/academic-policies-procedures/credit-hour-policy/>

The University of New Hampshire is in compliance with the federal definition of credit hour. For each credit hour, the University requires, at a minimum, the equivalent of three hours of student academic work each week assuming a 15-week semester (student workload for shorter length terms must be increased proportionally per week to maintain required approximately 45 hours of work per credit per term). Academic work includes, but is not limited to, direct faculty instruction, e-learning, recitation, laboratory work, studio work, fieldwork, performance, internships, and practica. Additional academic activities include, but are not limited to, readings, reflections, essays, reports, inquiry, problem solving, rehearsal, collaborations, theses, and electronic interactions. Student work reflects intended learning outcomes and is verified through evidence of student achievement. For more information, please see: Pp111 Policy On Credits-And-Degrees.pdf \(neche.org\).

Sample Syllabus Statement: Credit Hour Policy

This syllabus reflects the federal definition of a credit hour, which entails a minimum 3 hours of engaged time per week per credit over a 15-week semester. Examples of engaged time include class time, assignments, examinations, laboratories, participation in course-related experiences (attending a talk or performance, speakers and events, fieldwork, etc.), conferences, and office hours. Student work reflects intended learning outcomes and is verified through evidence of student achievement. For more information, please see: Pp111 Policy On Credits-And-Degrees.pdf \(neche.org\)

2.5 Simultaneous 700/800 Courses (if applicable)

800-level courses may be cross-listed with 700-level courses and taught simultaneously to both graduate and undergraduate students. While the content of the course is the same, the requirements and expectations of the students differ substantially with assignments, examinations, projects and analyses demonstrating a broader depth of understanding, sophistication and skills for students enrolled at the 800-level. Students must be enrolled in the 800 level of the course in order to obtain graduate credit.

2.6 Academic Integrity

Many colleagues are making a note on their syllabi of the importance of the University Academic Integrity Policy. Given the vigilance of the University in rooting out academic misconduct, we strongly encourage this practice, as well as one that clearly explains your standard penalty as allowed per the University Academic Integrity Policy. Many colleagues also include in their syllabi the link for the tutorial on plagiarism as well. Additional resources and best practices for counteracting dishonesty can be found on the Teaching and Learning Resource Hub here.

The Academic Integrity policy has also been updated to describe the steps faculty must take when issuing a formal penalty (reduced or failing grade on an academic assessment or examination or reduced or failing grade in the course) due to academic misconduct. These steps include providing students with notice of the allegations, giving them the opportunity to respond, and reporting the violation to the Office of Community Standards if a formal grade penalty is being issued. Familiarizing yourself with this policy will prevent any procedural errors in issuing these penalties.

2.6.1 Artificial Intelligence

The university recommends that instructors be very explicit with their students about whether or not any use of automated writing tools and tools that use artificial intelligence is allowed; and if allowed, be specific about just how and just when. Clear and explicit expectations will help students navigate course requirements while maintaining standards of academic integrity.

Turnitin now automatically analyzes submissions for potential use of automated writing tools. It is not perfect, but it can be a deterrent. See this Blog about the tool's reliability and suggestions for its use. If desired, the Turnitin detection tool could be used to trigger another check of the student's work such as a verbal discussion or a real-time Q&A.

We encourage departments to share best practices for their discipline. Helpful hints to adjust assignments in order to minimize the likelihood of plagiarism using chatGPT and other tools going undetected can be found through Teaching and Learning Resource Hub, this evergreen link from the FITSI conference, and at the end of this syllabus guide.

Sample Syllabus Statement: Artificial Intelligence -- If automated writing tools are prohibited in your course:

Unless otherwise specified, the use of Automated Writing Tools, including chatGPT and similar artificial intelligence (AI) tools, is strictly prohibited in this course, even when properly attributed. The use of automated writing tools is considered plagiarism (as defined by UNH's Academic Integrity Policy) and will be handled in accordance with existing policy.

PLAGIARISM (FROM SRRR)

Use or submission of intellectual property, ideas, evidence produced by another person, including computer generated text or work outsourced to third-parties, in whole or in part as one's own in any academic assessment without providing proper citation or attribution. In some cases, reusing one's own previous work without acknowledging or citing the original work can constitute self-plagiarism.

Sample Syllabus Statement: Artificial Intelligence -- If some use of automated writing tools is permitted in your course:

Specific assignments may permit or require the use of an automated writing tool. Please pay close attention to individual assignment instructions. It is important to note that if automated writing tools like chatGPT are permitted to be used for an assignment, then they should be used only in the manner specified, and with caution and proper citation to the tool. AI is not a replacement for your own thinking and research. ChatGPT is a sophisticated statistical next-word text predictor. Unlike you, it does not comprehend the meaning of what it produces.

2.7 Course Designation

Instructors are strongly encouraged to designate clearly on their syllabus that the course is a Discovery, Writing Intensive, and/or an Inquiry course if it is one.

2.8 Exam Scheduling

University policy prohibits the administration of examinations (i.e. no quizzes, tests, or exams) during the last week (last 5 weekdays) of classes. Academic Year Calendar can be found here. Outside of classes, only formal lab practicals may be scheduled during the last week (5 weekdays) of classes. Homework, labs and written reports can be due during the last week of classes. Please be sensitive to students who request flexibility due to religious obligations. The UNH Master Calendar contains major religious holidays, and directions for navigation on that calendar to find those holidays can be found here.

Please encourage students to work with you early in the semester to make any necessary schedule adjustments.

2.9 Incompletes

We hold students to high academic standards. Given our expectations, please avoid awarding incomplete grades. An incomplete should be considered only in the event of compelling, non-academic circumstances beyond a student's control, and towards the end of the semester when the student has but a few assignments left to finish the course, and only if the student requests an incomplete. An administrative failure (AF) is the appropriate grade for a student who has missed substantial portions and assignments of a class.

2.10 Curtailed Operations

The decision to curtail operations at UNH is made when the campus is unprepared for parking and pedestrian traffic, local road conditions require the suspension of bus service, or there are utility and power outages that impact our working environment. When possible, the curtailment announcement is made by 4 a.m. the day of the weather event. (Sign up for RAVE Alerts if you have not already.) During curtailed operations, only employees who perform priority support services are required to report to work/remain at work. Please have language in your syllabus about how you plan to inform students (Canvas announcements are recommended) of the specific expectations for their classes during curtailed operations. (For example, will assignments still be due?, any extra reading to replace class time?, optional office hours online? Class moves online?) Technology does enable alternatives to in-person meetings during curtailed operations, and instructors have the autonomy to choose how they handle curtailed operations for each class based on the learning outcomes and point of progression of the course. Please check with your Department Chair or Program Chair if you have any questions about what makes sense for your assigned courses. Please also consider internet accessibility for your specific student audience. (For example, if your students are commuter students, an online option may not be effective, whereas if your students are first years all living on the Durham campus, an online option may make sense.) The most important things are to communicate with your students and be aware of potential weather impacts on individual students.

NOTE: UNH Durham, UNH Manchester, UNH Franklin Pierce School of Law, CPS Online division, and UNH Cooperative Extension County offices make weather-related decisions independent of each other.

Sample Syllabus Statement: Curtailed Operations

If the university curtails operations due to weather, we will not hold in-person activities for our safety and the safety of others. As soon as possible, I will post an announcement on Canvas about due dates, any make-up work, and (if applicable) any online options that may make sense depending on where we are in the course. Please make sure you have access to the UNH Alert RAVE system. If needed, sign up for RAVE Alerts here.

2.11 Class Recording (if applicable)

Recording class lectures, office hours, and/or other course content increases accessibility – it may be necessary for students who need accommodations or who have excused absences, and can be used to assist all students in reviewing material and preparing for assessments. The following guidelines should be followed when recording classes or educational activities. Students' enrollment in a UNH course is consent to being recorded by UNH media platforms for educational and remote access purposes. If classes are being recorded, students must be notified and recordings may only be saved on secure university data platforms. If an instructor intends to use the recordings after the end of the semester, all student images, names, chat, and other data must be deleted, unless all students have given written consent to use of the recording outside of that class. Students may not share recordings outside of their course. If class activities are going to be recorded, instructors must include syllabus language that makes clear the expectations around recording.

Regarding students making their own recordings, faculty have the ability to set reasonable behavioral expectations for student behavior in their classroom. This would include determining if students are permitted to record in their class. If an instructor wishes to set expectations regarding student-initiated recordings, it is recommended that they include language in their syllabus and review the expectation at the beginning of the semester. If a student doesn't adhere to these policies (e.g. they want to record when the faculty has said they can't), the instructor can utilize normal classroom management strategies to deal with the situation. That would include addressing the situation individually with the student after class and/or directly addressing it in class and reiterating their expectations and asking the student not to record. In the event that a student refuses to follow the faculty's instructions, the faculty could ask the student to leave the class and/or consult with the Dean of Students if the students' behavior becomes disruptive.

Sample Syllabus Statement: Class Recording Policy

Class lectures and activities will/may be recorded in order to make this course more accessible, and recordings may be made available to students presently enrolled in the class to assist in reviewing material and preparing for assessments. Recordings are to be used for educational use/purposes only. Students may not record class activities (including screenshots showing instructors and students) without express permission from their instructor. If permission is granted, student-initiated recordings may only be used for educational purposes in this class and only during the period in which the student is enrolled in the class; authorized student-initiated recordings may not be posted or shared in any fashion outside of the class.

2.13 Remote Proctoring (if applicable)

If using remote proctoring in their course, instructors are strongly encouraged to include explanatory language on remote assessment proctoring on their syllabi, where applicable, including procedural and technological detail. Courses using such software will test it with students during the first weeks of instruction. This is important to ensure equity across your class and enable students with technology limitations to access help from IT or to work with faculty on alternative accommodations.

2.14 Expectations for Behavior in Online/Remote Course Components

If applicable, clearly state rules, norms, and best practices for student and instructor social engagement on discussion boards, in the chat box on Zoom, and convey your expectations regarding visibility on camera, muting, etc.

Netiquette Guidelines (from UNH Academic Technologies)

Netiquette is the socially and professionally acceptable way to communicate on the Internet. We are all expected to abide by these guidelines of “netiquette” when using online communication tools with your classmates and instructor. Guidelines can be found through the Teaching and Learning Resource Hub and at this Academic Technology resource. More general guidance can be found here.

3. Resources for Students

3.1 Technology Resources

Instructors are urged to outline for students the technology needed to participate in their class including any software and or hardware expectations that students will need to fully participate in class. Students who do not have an appropriate device to fully participate in their classes may request a loaner laptop for the full academic year through the form on the Basic Needs Support site.

A list of teaching and learning technology resources and links can be found here. Students can receive hands on technology help at the Academic Technology Support Center on Level 3 of Dimond Library, remote help is available by submitting an online request or calling the IT Help Desk: 603-862-4242.

Faculty needing additional classroom equipment, such as an OWL, to conduct hybrid classes may submit requests here.

3.2 Center for Academic Resources

Center for Academic Resources (CFAR) is dedicated to student academic success by teaching students to study smarter. CFAR staff coach students on study strategies like notetaking and reading skills, tips for remote learning, time management, organization, preparing for exams, problem-solving, and utilizing online and campus resources. Peer academic mentors represent a variety of majors and use the students' course materials to demonstrate best practices. Please make students, especially first- and second-year students, aware of this resource and encourage them to learn good academic practices early.

Sample Syllabus Statement: CFAR

Center for Academic Resources (CFAR) is where students go to improve their study skills, time management, and understanding of UNH's academic culture. Our professional educational counselors and peer academic mentors work within students' course materials to demonstrate best practices for learning concepts and preparing for exams. 3.2.1 Knack: UNH Pays Peers to Tutor so Peer Tutoring is available free to all students

Knack is a Peer-to-Peer tutoring platform available to all enrolled students for all undergraduate courses in Durham, and is offered at no charge to our students. This effort was initiated through the Student Senate, was piloted, and is now expanded for all students and has optional link to professional tutors if a UNH peer tutor is not available. Students looking for additional assistance outside of the classroom or other supports are advised to consider working with a peer tutor through Knack. UNH has partnered with Knack to provide students with access to verified UNH tutors who have successfully completed this course, or a highly trained professional tutor, if no UNH tutor is available. We are continually recruiting best-fit students (perhaps your former high-achievers) to sign up and list themselves as peer tutors on Knack. Please direct your students who've received a B+ or better to unh.joinknack.com. You can also recommend students to tutor by completing our brief Knack Tutor Professor Recommendation Form. Students meeting requirements can log in to unh.joinknack.com and sign up to be trained and become a paid tutor.

3.2.2 Early Alert Progress Reports

Per Faculty Senate, at week 5 of the semester Durham instructors will receive an email with a link so that you can complete the early alert Progress Report for your courses. Instructions for the reporting are included in the email that comes from “Dawna Perez <conversations@gradesfirst.com>On Behalf of Dawna Perez”. Faculty may have TAs fill out the Progress Report. Please speak with your students about the Progress Report as a university-wide effort to improve student success by encouraging students to seek resources they need so that they can get back on track to be successful in your course. When you submit an alert the student will receive an email from your name in the format of: <Instructor Name> [Notification@GradesFirst.com] on behalf of <Instructor Name> Even if no students in your class require an alert, please submit the Progress Report showing no students at-risk. Primary academic advisors will receive notification of any of their advisees' getting alerts.

Anytime outside of the Progress Report window, you can login to myWildcatSuccess through your Canvas page or by searching for it under Tools in the new portal <https://my.usnh.edu/dashboard> . Save it to Shortcuts for easy access. You can send an alert via Continuous Progress Reporting, or refer a student to a campus resource. Learn how to do it via this KB article. You can still use Issue an alert/referral to send Kudos to a student doing well, or refer students to campus resources. We continue to add resources each semester. This is a voluntary enhancement for you to use as it benefits your teaching and your students.

The University is invested in your academic success, and myWildcatSuccess is a tool to help you, your faculty, and your advisors communicate. If a faculty member is concerned about your academic behavior or performance, they may submit an academic alert -- particularly around Week 5. Academic alerts are not punitive. The goal is to provide you with support and resources to support your success. If you receive an academic alert, you will receive an email to your UNH email address from my name in the format <Instructor Name> [Notification@GradesFirst.com] on behalf of <Instructor Name>. Alternately, find your Progress Reports under the Reports tab in myWildcatSuccess. To get to myWildcatSuccess, search for it under Tools in the portal <https://my.usnh.edu/dashboard> and save it to Shortcuts.

If you receive an alert, please meet with your faculty member or your advisor about the concern. The purpose of these alerts is to encourage you to visit the campus resources you need early on, so that you can get back on track for a successful semester.
